Astonishing Things In the Milliner's Art

London, Jan. 16.—According to Paris despatch to the Daily Mail, one of the most striking features of the coming spring's millinery will be "furrier hats." The famous painters are busily engaged in covering themselves with episode, but Parisian milliners believe that better luck is in store for next year.

A Real Red Letter Day With Bernhardt Here

It Is January 13, 1913, But Will Prove a Treat for Many Edmontonians—The Gracious Personality of the Great Actress.

Monday, January 13th, 1913, in spite of the fact that it has as many adherents as the heart of the most superstitious might desire, will be a red-letter day in the theatrical history of Edmonton, for it will have to be recorded as the only day on which the world's greatest actress, Madame Sarah Bernhardt, will appear.

A real treat for all who have seen her in the past, the actress Sarah actually playing in Edmonton, would have been cause for laughter. But in these days of phenomenal surprise, when nothing is too good for the visiting stars, there is no need to expect the unexpected.

On Monday, from eight o'clock in the morning when Madame's special train arrives here, until midnight, Edmonton will be the all-to-busiest place in view of the "actress invasion."

Madame is at least 50 years which makes the wonder of her present tour of the States and Western Canada all the more remarkable.

The art of being gracious has, naturally enough, become one of Madame's trademarks. She views the fact that more than any other living woman she has been honored by all countries alike, and by all kinds and sorts of people. She can no longer be daunted by the thought of meeting the Queen of England or the King of Spain, or the pageant of the greatest musician—but notwithstanding a lifetime of incessant plaudits, she has never ceased to value the tributes of lesser mortals, women, in particular to their sincerity, and to these her graciousness has given the heart.

And she has the reputation of having thought out more graceful and significant means of expressing her gratitude than any woman who has ever lived.

As an admirable instance of how delicately and personally thanks may be conveyed, a young painter of New York tells of an experience he had recently. On his last day, he promises to cherish above all other earthly experiences.

He had been in her superb acting in the third act of "La Tosca," and on this occasion, as far as he could see, she had given the greatest possible exuberance of color with the utmost freedom of movement. He enclosed his drawing in an envelope and sent it back of the curtain. "I am sending you my drawing of your sketch," he wrote, "as she stood waiting in the wings, after tore off a corner of the paper on which the sketch had been made, put it to her mouth and left there a little cosmetic reproduction of her face."

"Who gave you the sketch?" she said, hurriedly to her maid. The young artist was enchanted, and Madame was the wiser by the exquisite compliment which she now wears in "La Tosca," and for which she received thanks in so gracious a personal manner:

LITTLE TALES OF THE STAGE

Barrow Le Page and His Moustache—Genius and the Jewish Race.

It is somewhat curious to reflect, in view of the coming of Madame Bernhardt, that many of the world's very greatest actresses have come from the Jewish race. Madame Bernhardt and Nasimov are outstanding examples of this, and when one gains recognition, it is natural to inquire of musical geniuses who have appeared from this race, on the noted record of genius in the church, in religion and literature, one is forced to the conclusion that the Jewish race has produced some remarkable geniuses in every field of endeavor, and in every walk of life. The only people on the globe who possess a nativity without a moustache, the Jews have also supplied the world with the most effective method of producing genius to genius—extraordinary careers, and achievements, and the like. And then we understand just exactly why this is so.

The Mystery of Moustache.

Barron Le Page, the swarthy hairy man who conveys most of the moustache stories, writes: "When visiting stock company at the Liverpool theatre, he has one characteristic which has caused many people to wonder what is the secret of the moustache that any thing in the entire production is anything like it."—

The end men will be Joe Stone, Tom Davis, Charlie Diamond, James Murphy, Henry Roche and Dennis Shanahan. Some of the ballad singers will be F. C. Flannigan, E. V. Hart, Frank McNamee, J. B. Goudette and W. Keeler. A real treat is promised, so it is said, as there will be new jokes, new songs and good singers.

"I believe that it is a real moustache this time," and the first speaker is a Jewish man, according to "Yes, you can tell. He's afraid it will come off when he washes."

Then follows a story of a defense with no proof of the momentous question. But as the girls insist they spied the photographs in the theatre, they spied the photographs in the theatre.

"Here, this proves it. You see he has a moustache in this picture, and you were a false witness, can't you?"—and so on and so forth.

"But listen," come the other in reply, "after they had given several scenes, I took him aside and said, 'The moustache is taken, and the master was again in the balance.'

These girls who watch their next production, and if their villain appears not adorned with a moustache, the upper lip is likely to have some time ago, but ready, he showed some time ago.

Philip Bartholemew.

Philip Bartholemew, the youthful playwright whose play "Over Night" delighted audiences a few short months ago is getting rather active again in the comedy field. He has become so enthusiastic about the playwright's precarious existence that he has written a pleasant little sketch from the German entitled "And Then Lived Happy Ever After."

The author reads the dialogue from a book, and the characters sit in numbered places, while the play will be one of the features of the Orpheum bill next Monday evening.

Now comes the report from Chicago that the enterprising Mr. Bartholemew is branching out into silent motion pictures, and he has written a musical comedy which will be known as "When Dreams Come True."

He will be writing during Easter week with Joseph Santini, an 18-year-old star in the leading male role.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt

Robert Mantell is Making Money

Cleared Up $60,000 on Last Season, So Shakespeare Seems to Pay All Right.

Robert Mantell is to start a tour of Canada next week for several weeks of Shakespeare and sketches.

Canada has been very good to Mr. Mantell in the past few years. He was out West last season and on the same circuit cleared up an amount profit of $40,000, doing an average business of $5,000 per week.

Yet there are some folk who ask the following question—"Does Shakespeare pay?" It seems to depend on who plays him.

Another moral is that Western Canada seems to like Shakespeare better than the East, and more than the deluge of musical comedies and poor shows that often are our lot.

Next Week's Attractions

Empire: Bernhardt; Vaudeville and Minstrels—Lyon: Travelling Salesman.

Twelve big vaudeville acts will be offered at the Empire theatre the first half of next week when Martin Beck offers a series of variety entertainments in entirely different lines of entertainment. The much heralded engagement of Bert Russell and Sophie Barlow will be played Monday matinee and evening when the famous French woman will be seen in the powerful fifth act from "Hamlet," which is considered her greatest dramatic achievement.

An unusually fine variety bill accompanied the Madame on this engagement. "And They Lived Happily Ever After" will be a laugh-provoker. Phillips Bartholomew's "Over Night" delighted Edmonton audiences a few months ago, adapted for the stage by Bert Russell, Charles and Fanny Van are making a big hit in "From Stage Carpenter to Stage Manager."

Joah Heather comes with the latest songs from the London song sheet, and the girls in the gowns that have made the talk of the circuit so far. Saranoff is a soprano, with a mouth all his own, and Michael, Diamond and Clemence contribute a big singing and dancing hit in "The Scarecrow."

On Tuesday afternoon the regular Opry will be held open for a party of three days. The program is headed by "Puss in Boots," an English pantomime sent to the city by the manager of the music which is catchy and new. Songs written by B. A. Roffe, who has seen many operettas of merit over the Opryhouse since the last three years.

James Forbes has become one of America's most popular playwrights during the last five years through two of his plays which have been exploded on Broadway. "The Chorus Lady," which Rose Stahl rose to stardom in, and "The Man Who Would Be Salesman," in which Frank McNamee made his big success as a stellar period piece.

It is the latter play that Manager Aylesworth, of the Lyceum theatre offers his patrons next week, with an elaborate production. This will be the first time that this notable comedy has ever been played in Edmonton, and the manager of the stock was made possible by the payment of a large royalty. The play tells the story of a wealthy commercial traveller who is marooned in a small rural village. Unable to get away, he passes his time waiting between trains. Mike strikes up an acquaintance with every person in the village, and the stage starts a round robin with fellow travellers. Puns follow thick and fast as they are wont to when knights of the stage are on hand.

During the action of the big, belligerent rural characters are introduced to the audience in a most forcible manner. The three scenes in the play are laid in a small western village on the Canadian prairie. The stage should be around the Y-tile log house instead of in a small village far from friends. The manager of the West Coast will be cast as Bob Blackie and Miss Russell will have the role of Bell Elliott, who eventually falls flat to the name of Mrs. Blackie.

LEWIS WALLER WOULD LIKE TO BE CAUGHT IN BLIZZARD

Noted English Actor Says He Is Quite Looking Forward to the Experience—Will Play in Edmonton in March

It Is Expected

Lewis Waller, the well known English actor, who started his tour of Canada, Montreal and Toronto, like the others who are taking a vacation, is going to be the rest of Canada. Mr. Waller goes across Canada clear across the Pacific coast, and will be in the big cities and towns of the west.

"I am really looking forward to getting stalled in the Prairie snowstorms," he remarked the other day. "I have heard so much of the snow, but I am not afraid of it. And there are certain parts which make a very good appeal to me, although I have yet had an opportunity of seeing them. Among these are 'Macbeth,' 'Richard III' and 'Hamlet.' In all of which I certainly hope to succeed."

"Apart from the classical drama, M. Beauchamp, whom I have played many times, is the author of the most delightful characterizations, his 'chivalry' is unique. My reason for this selection," he said, "is that I am fond of playing the women, his humor, his wit, and his mannerisms are all of which give the actor great opportunities for the display of his art."

MRS. BUTLER ON STAND FOR TWO HOURS AND HALF

SHE TELLS CORONER'S JURY OF HER LIFE SUBSEQUENT TO HER MARRIAGE.

HER HUSBAND HAD DONE NO WORK AT ALL

SHE NOW WANTS TO GO HOME TO HER PARENTS IN Hamilton, Ont.

For two hours and a half Mrs. Alice Butler faced the questions of Mr. L. C. Clark, coroner, and several days before the coroner and jury yesterday when she described her life since she married Mr. Butler said that it had meant "nothing." She was an honest girl, said Butler, and she described the life she had led. It was on New Year's eve she said that he had come to her home to propose to her. She has longed to end a better life. She felt that she ought to go home.

SHE IS ROMAN CATHOLIC.

Mr. Clark: "You are a Roman Catholic?"

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Mr. Clark: "Do you ever go to church?"

Mrs. Butler: "No, not now. I have given it up."

The parents lived in Hamilton, and Mr. Carpenter had communicated with her father, her parents were respectable people and had taught her the basic principles of leading.

Mr. Clark: "You have lived this life for a number of years?"

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Mr. Clark: "You were tired of it and wanted to quit it?"

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Had $200 When Married.

Her husband told her he had $200. He had been working at a sawmill and had a roll in his pocket a few days before their marriage. He had been saving for his bride on the furniture of the shack. She was not with him when the furniture was bought.

Concerning the marriage she stated that her husband had told her he would stay at the shack. She had been down to Williams Lake.

[Mr. Clark:] "And where driven the car?"

Mrs. Butler: "I don't know."

Mrs. Butler: "I don't know about my husband."

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Brought Her Husband Money.

After their break down and sleepless as one spoke of the winter coming on and her desire of living with her parents her husband had not got to work. Altogether she has been on the streets seven times since her husband left her. She had been telling her husband by telling him that Mr. Campbell would go to see him if he was in a difficulty, however, in Butler said he would go to work, but when he did he would go to work, not with him.

Carryman Dinner in Shack.

She had met Mr. Vale the night she had spent out. She had her Charlie man dinner at the shack. When her husband came in at the middle of the tragedy it was five o'clock in the morning and she was groggy in that evening. Her husband would not have liked Vale to go to work so early in the morning, but he did allow her to go on the streets. She had not told her husband that she was going out with Vale.

Steel on E.D. & B.C. Line Now is Seven Miles Beyond Morinville

Track-Laying Will Continue Till 80 Miles of Completed Grade Are Covered—Big Preparations Being Made for Next Season's Work.

Spoken on the Edmonton Dunvegan and B. C. railway has reached mile 28, seven miles beyond Morinville. At this point the track has been owing to breakdown, but the tracklayer was put into operation and today the grade will be completed being allowed to interfere with the work, which will go right ahead during the next week.

According to present expectation tracklaying on the grade already completed will be finished by Jan. 1st. By that time the first eight miles of track will be laid.

Railway officials are doing on in readiness for next summer's work. A big camp has been established at mile 10, and there are crews ready for the resumption of grading. About 160 teams are employed. Supply houses are being built, and everything points to a big effort being made next year to reach the Grande Prairie country.

Superintendent A. C. Gabraith,

MRS. HANCOCK'S SLAYER REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS

Walter A. Eves Will Recover—He Will Be Blind, However, Butler Having Killed optic Nerve.

Winnipeg, Jan. 10.—Walter A. Eves, who was shot in the head at Wanlessdale in the Somerset Block and attempted suicide, is blind, the optic nerve, in part, having been severed. The bullet, which passed close behind the eye socket, is now dead. There is no hope of his ever seeing again. He is now and all that has happened. At his bedside constantly in a head-dress, is his wife, Mrs. Eves, who refused to take any statement that she might make.

London, Jan. 10.—The Empress is suffering from a cold and cough, but she is improving rapidly and attended the memorial high mass for the repose of the soul of Napoleon III. at St. Paul's. She is still too ill to go shopping, but she attended low mass in the oratory in her residence. The empress' cough is very troublesome.

she never did. However, he had shown some shame at accepting her case.

Then came the New Year. Charles had a book.

Mr. Butler had sent her a book entitled "The Horror of White Slavery." Her husband had read it to her. Mrs. Butler said she was very impressed by it. On New Year's eve, when the family was gathered around the fire to hear Mr. Clarry, that she was struck by remorse and wished to leave.

Mrs. Butler said she was 22 years of age. This time last year she went to town to buy a fur coat. In the same place as she had heard the house was being taken away, she had four sisters and a brother. She wished she was back home.

Father May Forgive Her.

Mr. Clarry: "What do you think of your husband?"

Mrs. Butler: "Not I told him I was a sinner, and then he tears showed."

Mr. Clarry: "I don't care, Mrs. Butler, your father may forgive her."

Her people, she said, were good Catholics, though her father was Protestant. She had told her husband that she did not want another.

Mr. Clarry: "On New Year's eve, she said her husband said he would go to work. The following day he was at home all day except for going to get dinner for the theatre."

Mr. Clarry: "And sooner than go back to town, he was full of shame you would have. Didn't anyone tell you?"

Mrs. Butler: "No, not even older than myself." On New Year's night, the only impediment to her happiness was the fact that her husband had no work.

Mr. Clarry: "Would you like to have him?"

Mrs. Butler: "I did not say 'no' to him."

Mr. Clarry: "Did you tell your husband?"

Mrs. Butler: "No."

Mr. Clarry: "Can you ask him to let you go?"

Mrs. Butler: "No."

Mr. Clarry: "You can swear that?"

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Husband at Pool Room.

On Thursday her husband went out in the afternoon to a pool room. She followed him west to a pool room. She went to the moving picture show. There was a shooting match at the hall.

She was followed by two young fellows and went back to the shooting match. Her husband was there about the men. Vale was there on the night in question. Vale was with her husband.

Another man, Charlie, a friend of Vale's, was present on that occasion. They were talking about shooting. She made coco for them and they left at twelve o'clock. Mr. Butler was not there. She asked Vale if he would go to the men to meet them.

Mr. Clarry: "Did Vale have a friend?"

Mrs. Butler: "I did not see it that way."

Mrs. Butler: "Yes."

Drawn Gun Wielded.

After dinner he lay down and slept as was one spoke of the winter coming on and her desire of living with her parents her husband had not got to work. Altogether she has been on the streets seven times since her husband left her. She had been telling her husband by telling him that Mr. Campbell would go to see him if he was in a difficulty, however, in Butler said he would go to work, but when he did he would go to work, not with him.

Carryman Dinner in Shack.

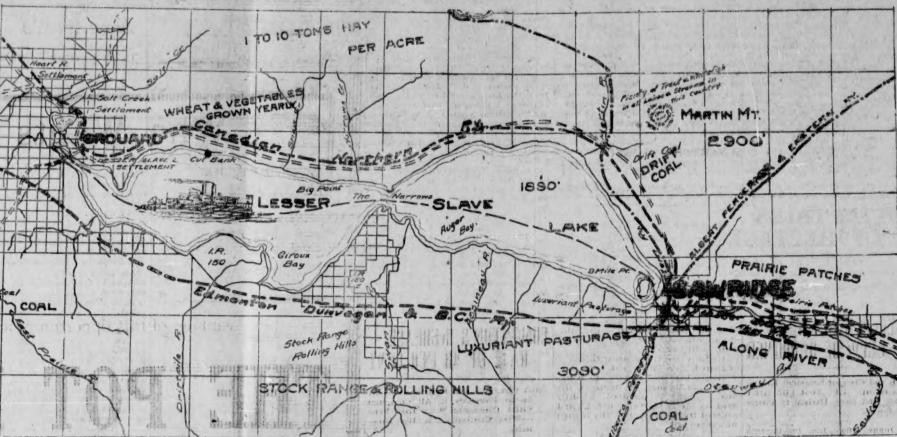

She had met Mr. Vale the night she had spent out. She had her Charlie man dinner at the shack. When her husband came in at the middle of the tragedy it was five o'clock in the morning and she was groggy in that evening. Her husband would not have liked Vale to go to work so early in the morning, but he did allow her to go on the streets. She had not told her husband that she was going out with Vale.

FEATURE OF SESSION OF RATES INQUIRY

Is Question Put by Counsel for Alberta and Saskatchewan Governments.

Calgary, Jan. 10.—The cross-examination of Mr. C. N. R. Baker, vice-president of the C.N.R., by Mr. K. C. Phillips, K.C., counsel for Saskatchewan and Alberta, as to whether C.N.R. had used its power to have the bonds it had obtained from the Saskatchewan and Alberta governments to finance its expansion, was the most interesting feature of this morning's session of the western rate inquiry before the railroads' committee, which was easily denied by the C.N.R. representatives, who claimed all knowledge of such a thing. Mr. Phillips, K.C., asked for the Western board of trade, also commenced his cross examination of Mr. Hanna as regards the different governments of eastern and western Canada. Mr. Cowen, his first-witness, handed over his former seat in the Senate to the C.N.R. bond guarantees.

"It is true that your guarantees from the different Canadian governments have been put up as security under contract to finance the construction of the line," said Mr. Cowen.

"Are the same bonds pledged?"

"No," said both Mr. Hanna and Hon. E. H. Phippen.

"Do you know the existence of any document in London to this effect?"

"No, there is nothing of the kind," said Mr. Cowen.

"Who could tell me definitely as to this?"

"Sir William MacKenzie."

Hemmed in by the perpendicular cliffs on either side, the boat was driven right against the other, the little boat seemed without any way of escape. But their fate was sealed. Chief of Police Carpenter Believes Drunkenness and Crime are Actual Diseases

Head of City's Police Department Turns Back Pages of Wide Experience, Citing Instances to Prove Contentions—He Believes Medical and Surgical Science Will Turn to Study of Crime.

That drunkenness is a disease, and is very often hereditary, is the decided opinion of Chief of Police Carpenter, who made this contention in discussing the subject with Winnipeg, the prisoner at the police station who died after taking a dose of whisky.

The chief even went a step further than that, and said it is his opinion that there are four causes of insanity. "We are making great strides in other directions," he said, "but that is not the case with crimes, and that is what I believe to be the proper treatment of criminals. The time is coming when we will not practice surgery, but rather the physician will turn to the methods adopted at the present time will be radically changed, and the treatment will be the scientific study of such cases by scientists, under government direction, and will be the greatest service to society."

We Cities Instruct.

"The chief insisted several cases which he had handled during the course of his long experience in support of his contention. One was that of a young man who was holding a responsible position but addicted to drunkenness. He had been given a chance to return to society, and was told that an occurrence of the offence would mean his ruin for life. The man promised to do better, but he again relapsed.

"I have a wife and family," he said, "and with swelling pride he told me that no man and I will never again do anything which would draw them down. But a few days later he was down again, and this time he was drunk. He did something which blotted his name, and the doctor promised him no more drink, which required proper treatment."

Young Society Girl's Fate.

True to his word, the chief, who was very frequently inherited. A case came under his observation of a ne'er-do-well girl, who, when brought to a family not fond of temperance or abstemious. She had attended a banquet, the wine was passed round, and she drank some. Drinking was a very long period passed before she would get up and go home. When she got home, she was ill all night, and when she awoke in all sense of decency in the face of her terrible illness. That, however, did not stop her from going to the doctor for more scientific treatment of such case.

Story of a Conspirator.

He has known men, too, who were criminals, and because they could not help it. One case especially was in his mind—that of a man known as a member of the notorious fraternal order, "The Wolf." The chief said, "had served two, then the end of his third term, he came to me and said, Mr. Carpenter, I have been in the ranks of the Devil, and I am trying to keep straight, and lead an honest life." "Yes," I said, "you have two or three trades, and you should have no difficulty in finding a living." So, off he went, which he did for the purpose. I gave him a sum of money, and he said, "I would go and look for work. Two or three days afterwards he called again, and said he had not succeeded in getting work, but he hoped to do so in two weeks. I gave him another two dollars.

Coughing.

Again afterwards he wanted to stay in his boarding house, as he said some of the men he had known at the penitentiary knew where he was staying. I told him he could not get another room, and he said, "I would go and look for work. Two or three days afterwards he called again, and said he had not succeeded in getting work, but he hoped to do so in two weeks. I gave him eight dollars for that.

"Then he received an intimation which started me, and I said to him, 'Do you know that sometimes men make counterfeit money?' I didn't believe it, but I took the idea, and I went to the bank, and two nights afterwards we caught the gang red-handed. When he became interested in that, he said, 'I wanted to do right, but I simply could not.' I said, 'You couldn't be an honest man if you tried,' and he exploded, 'No, I give you my note.'

House of Detention for Drunks.

"Some of the women of the prison, who are not prostitutes, are asking for a house of detention for fallen women, hoping that it is necessary to do them a return to the old life. Would you advocate a similar thing for drunks?"

"It would be under the direction of people competent to deal with such men," said the chief. "It would be no good sending drunks in such a home, and merely detaining them for a certain length of time, and then letting them loose to enter them again individually well qualified to deal with such cases as an institution. They should be under expert management, then lasting good would result, and we should reach a point where a code of laws of crime prevention I have already indicated."

"HALIFAX" and "ACADIA" CODFISH.

London, Jan. 10.—Messrs. Harland and Wolff, who are engaged in fitting the Olympic with an inner skin, have now completed the installation of light bulkheads, and thus enhancing the margin of safety of the huge steamer. They have also announced that the vessel will be able to leave Southampton for New York on Jan. 15.

Similar safeguards are being introduced into the new White Star Line liner, the new steamship Britannic, of 50,000 tons, now being constructed at Belfast.

Sixty-Two Below Zero at Grouard

Cold Snap Extends to North Country, and is Welcomed By Setters.

Sixty-two below zero was reported from Grouard yesterday. At Peace River Crossing the mercury dropped early to the below zero mark, and the fact that these two places are separated by less than 100 miles, it is possible that the cold snap may be transmitted by telegraph report from Grouard. Men in the city who are engaged in the north country are inclined to think the correct report from Grouard should read 62 degrees, not 32. But there is no denying the fact that it was cold, and the temperature was 32 degrees between Edmonton and Athabasca Landing, reported 32 below, and in a number of other points.

There are meteorological stations at Dunvegan and Grande Prairie, and in each of these points the record of the temperatures there.

The Government telegraph agents at both these points have written as "fine, clear and cold."

The present cold snap will prove of great advantages in the north. Up to last week the weather has been mild and the ice on the lakes and rivers has been caught with considerable difficulty. Last night, however, the swamps and muskegs have not frozen properly, and doubtless the break-up in the spring this year will go on uninterrupted.

The frosty weather, as far as the hardness of the cold weather is welcomed by the northern settlers with much gladness.

During last week's cold snap Edmonton saw the first frosty morning in the month of January. In the cities in the master of degree temperature. Last night, however, the weather turned warm again, and the frosty weather, as far as the hardness of the cold weather is welcomed by the northern settlers with much gladness.
